

B1
a seal member comprising a head portion and an opening therein complementary in shape to said formation, said formation received in said opening, said heel portion and said toe portion cooperating to retain said seal member.

---

7. (twice amended) A door panel assembly in accordance with Claim 6 wherein said formation depends from a bottom portion of said inner door panel.

8. (twice amended) A door panel assembly for a dishwasher, said door panel assembly comprising:

B2
an inner door panel comprising a formation extending therefrom, said formation comprising at least one flat surface and a curved surface extending opposite said flat surface, said at least one flat surface defining a heel portion extending beyond said curved surface; and
~~an inner door panel comprising a formation extending therefrom, said formation comprising at least one flat surface and a curved surface extending opposite said flat surface, said at least one flat surface defining a heel portion extending beyond said curved surface; and~~
an inner door panel comprising a formation extending therefrom, said formation comprising at least one flat surface and a curved surface extending opposite said flat surface, said at least one flat surface defining a heel portion extending beyond said curved surface; and

P
a seal member comprising a head portion and an opening therethrough, said opening receiving said formation and attaching said seal member to said formation.

---

10. (once amended) A door panel assembly in accordance with Claim 9, wherein said heel portion extends from said flat rear edge.

B3
11. (twice amended) A door panel assembly in accordance with Claim 10, said boot portion comprising a curved arch portion extending from said heel.

---

PLEASE ADD THE FOLLOWING NEW CLAIMS

---

21. (new) A seal for a door panel, said seal comprising:

B4
a head portion and a flap portion extending from said head portion, said head portion defining a boot-shaped opening having a heel portion, a toe portion angularly displaced from said heel portion, and a curved arch portion extending between said heel portion and said toe